DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. Claims 1, 4 and 12 provide for the use of the switching transistor formed by a sequential lateral solidification method, but, since the claim does not set forth any steps involved in the method/process, it is unclear what method/process applicant is intending to encompass. A claim is indefinite where it merely recites a use without any active, positive steps delimiting how this use is actually practiced.

Claims 1-6 and 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed recitation of a use, without setting forth any steps involved in the process, results in an improper definition of a process, i.e., results in a claim which is not a proper process claim under 35 U.S.C. 101. See for example Ex parte Dunki, 153 USPQ 678 (Bd.App. 1967) and Clinical Products, Ltd. v. Brenner, 255 F. Supp. 131, 149 USPQ 475 (D.D.C. 1966).

Claims 1, 4, and 12, are directed to an active matrix organic electroluminescence device which is an apparatus claim. The apparatus claims, however, include a limitations that include the switching or driving transistor being formed by sequential lateral solidification method.

Because the claimed invention is an apparatus, it does not matter how the switching (driving) transistor is made. The claim of the formation of the transistor is a process claim and should be claimed independently.

Conclusion

2. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Yamada (US 6,246,179); also teach similar inventive subject matter.
